Accessible, Approachable 24-7

Today's technological advancement provides us with a multitude of communication choices. Information gathering & sharing, and interactive contact have never been more readily accessible. Yet despite the efficiency of the electronic age, getting a timely response is sometimes challenging and frustrating.

The real estate sales representative you want on your side is one who has a facility with modern technology; one who is fully automated, connected and able to provide you with almost instantaneous data, feed back and answers to your questions. By deftly handling cell phones, BlackBerry, pagers and laptop computers the contemporary agent is wired for business. He/she remains in constant contact with his/her support team & clients while working in the field, networking to find the right property for you. There is nothing more frustrating than having an important question you need answered "now", and not being able to reach your agent.

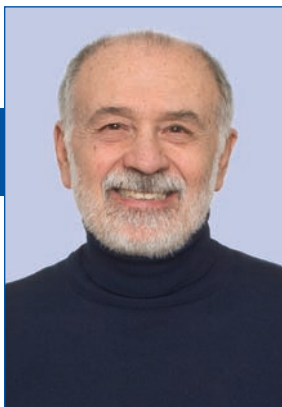

Sales Representatives and Brokers with trained teams of full-time licensed assistants dedicated to the Seller's and Buyer's needs are far more capable of maintaining constant lines of communication and attending to your real estate needs.

Pulla is "attached to the hip" with various communication modes. When you need him he's easily accessible, approachable and you're assured of a prompt reply. Pulla's business is service and you deserve the best.

Before hiring someone to represent your interest make sure he/she is committed to being available. Think about it before signing on the dotted line.

You are in good hands with Pulla. Talk to him, it might be one of the most rewarding business decisions you'll ever make.
